Architecture :

77. One of the best known houses in Warren County, this structure was transformed from a side passage plan, two-storied Greek Revival house into a grandiose neoclassical I-house at the turn of the century by the addition of a two-storied, two-bayed block at one end for the sake of symmetry, a monumental, balustraded portico, a palladian window with balcony in the center of the upper floor, and a porte-cochere. The additions and alterations did not obscure the evidence or details of the original block.
